

Graduate Certificate in Public Health

The UNF Public Health Certificate (PHC) Program consists of five required courses. The PHC Program prepares participants with a broad understanding of the core areas of public health and skills necessary for public health practice in a wide range of public and private institutions. This certificate is ideal for those students who are working on a Master's degree in another field, but are interested in or plan to work in a public health setting, or for professionals who are working in the field but do not have a degree in public health. The PHC is offered through the UNF Master of Public Health (MPH) program. MPH faculty teach the required PHC courses, and students take courses along with MPH students. The UNF MPH Program is nationally accredited by the Council on Education for Public Health (CEPH).

The Certified in Public Health (CPH) credential, offered by the National Board of Public Health Examiners, is the only voluntary core credential for public health professionals. The CPH designation demonstrates that an individual has mastered foundational competencies in public health. To be eligible for CPH, one must be a graduate of a CEPH-accredited MPH program or have taken the five core classes (epidemiology, biostatistics, behavioral sciences/health education, environmental health, health administration/policy) at a CEPH-accredited institution and meet either of two additional eligibility criteria: 1) minimum of five years of public health experience; OR 2) completion of a relevant graduate degree. Hence, individuals completing the UNF PHC may be eligible to take the CPH exam.

The UNF PHC Program is offered in a hybrid format – students can complete the program in one year meeting on campus one to two nights per week on average. The Program admits one cohort of students each fall semester. Each course is offered in one of three ways: 1) face-to-face; 2) distance learning (DL); or 3) hybrid. Face-to-face courses meet on UNF campus, typically one night per week, 6:00-8:45pm. DL courses are offered online. Hybrid courses are a combination of the first two methods, with no more than half of classes meeting face-to-face. This format makes the UNF PHC Program very accessible to those working full time while still providing meaningful interaction with faculty and peers.

ADMISSION TO THE PROGRAM

University Requirements:

1. A baccalaureate degree from a regionally accredited U.S. institution or its equivalent from a foreign institution with a GPA of 3.0 or higher in all work attempted in the last 60 credit hours of undergraduate study.

Individuals with a bachelor's degree in any field may be accepted into the PHC Program; there are no pre-requisites. Acceptance into the PHC Program is dependent on student eligibility and space in the program. Students who have graduated from the MPH program or are enrolled in the MPH Program are not eligible to earn the Certificate. All courses for the Certificate must be completed at the University of North Florida.

Students must apply for the Public Health Certificate through the UNF graduate school and submit their official transcripts. No application fee is required for currently enrolled UNF students. Questions about the Admission Process can be directed to The Graduate School at UNF: (904) 620-1360.
