The Department of Psychology at the University of North Florida invites applications for one entry-level, tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Social Psychology (#311200) to begin August 2015. We are especially interested in candidates whose specialization within social psychology involves applied research in areas such as social justice, social neuroscience, industrial-organizational behavior, health, law, and community issues. We are also interested in candidates with experience teaching or demonstrated ability to teach undergraduate research methods, social psychology, experimental social psychology, and other related social psychology courses. We seek candidates who have an established record of quality publications, the potential to obtain external funding for their program of research, and a research program that would involve undergraduate and graduate students.

The University seeks to attract a diverse faculty of the highest caliber, skilled in teaching and the scholarship of discovery, application, and integration of knowledge. We particularly encourage members of historically under-represented groups to apply. The position is open until filled. Review of applications begins November 1, 2014.

All candidates must have a Ph.D. in Psychology or will have it awarded by August 10, 2015. Successful candidates are expected to (a) teach undergraduate and graduate courses in psychology at the equivalent of a 3/3 load (including courses related to the candidate’s particular area of expertise), (b) establish and maintain a productive program of research that holds potential for national recognition, (c) to seek external funding for their program of research, (d) supervise undergraduate and graduate student research and/or community-based practica and internships, and (e) contribute to service in the department, university, and profession.

UNF is part of Florida’s State University System. UNF was recently awarded the Carnegie Foundation "Community Engagement" designation. We are part of the thriving Jacksonville metropolitan area that offers many opportunities for applied research. Our campus is located on a 1000-acre nature preserve, 10 miles from the Atlantic Ocean. For information about UNF and the Department, visit http://www.unf.edu/coas/psychology/.

Individuals must complete the application online at http://www.unfjobs.org, and must upload and mail appropriate required documents. Applicants who do not upload and mail all required documentation cannot be considered for the position. Applicants must upload a current CV and Letter of Interest including a brief statement of teaching and research interests, unofficial graduate transcript(s), and a list of names, addresses, and phone numbers of three (3) references. In addition, three (3) signed Letters of Recommendation must be mailed directly to the department.

Send appropriate documents to the search committee Chair at the following address:

Dr. Christopher Leone
Chair, Social Psychology Search Committee (#311200)
Department of Psychology
University of North Florida
1 UNF Drive
Jacksonville, FL 32224-2673
Individuals who require reasonable accommodation in order to participate in the application and/or selection process must notify Dr. Michael Toglia at (904) 620-1624 a minimum of five (5) working days in advance. Please contact alicia.crystalus@unf.edu for general information regarding the position. UNF is an Equal Opportunity/Equal Access/Affirmative Action institution.