Minor in Urban and Metropolitan Studies

Program Mission Statement

UNF’s Minor in Urban and Metropolitan Studies cultivates knowledge of cities and urban life beyond the methodological and theoretical traditions of a single discipline. Drawing upon courses in different programs, departments, and colleges, the minor encourages broad yet focused inquiry into urban institutions, processes, and challenges.

Assessment Approaches

Because students may choose four of the five minor courses from offerings in different programs and departments, assessment relies on work generated in the single required course, Introduction to the Metropolis. Here students will complete assignments designed to assess the five outcomes included here.
