NEW LEADERSHIP PROGRAM!

The Institute for Values, Community, and Leadership is proud to announce the New Leadership Program, a merging of the New Community Leadership Minor and Leadership Certificate. The new Leadership credential will be displayed prominently on the Academic Transcript. Embraced by all five UNF colleges, this unique interdisciplinary model reflects what Fortune 500 companies and graduate schools have requested of public Universities in cultivating leaders that can hit the ground running in the workforce.

This program will educate, excite, and invigorate you- sparking your passion for becoming the change that you want to see in the world.

Leadership Speakers Bureau: Rocket Scientist Dionne Jackson

http://www.unf.edu/ivcl/Upcoming_Events

Wednesday, March 6, 2013
6:00 - 7:00 p.m.

Location: Student Union Ballroom, Building 58W, Room 3703

Learn the art and science of mastering a leadership style that empowers others to lead in a highly performing and productive manner.

Dionne Jackson, a NASA Analytical Chemist in the Material Science Laboratory at the Kennedy Space Center will share her leadership experiences in this installment of the Leadership Speakers Bureau. Ms. Jackson is responsible for testing and identifying materials that are utilized in projects by NASA agencies, private businesses, and local schools. Her role is crucial to ensuring the safety of property and the lives of others in a vast array of environments. Additionally, Ms. Jackson exemplifies her own leadership abilities outside of her profession by weekly mentoring young girls in the 2nd the 12th grades.

Light refreshments will be served.

TEDxWomen Leadership Speakers Bureau, Videos Available from Simulcast

http://www.unf.edu/ivcl/Leadership_Speakers_Bureau

The Institute for Values, Community, and Leadership had the great honor of co-sponsoring the TEDxWomen simulcast in December. Videos from the powerful speakers are now available for viewing on our website.

This diverse group of successful people displayed their care about the state of women everywhere. The speakers presented their findings, concerns, and passions in a myriad of arenas; cancer treatment, women’s impact on culture on a global level, women in the arts, autism, war, and new tools to improve government.

Volunteer Opportunity for Student Leaders

Call for student volunteers! The UNF Institute for Values, Community and Leadership in collaboration with the UNF Honors & Scholars Program are sponsoring a project for UNF students to edit interviews conducted with local Holocaust survivors. For Passover, the manuscript of interviews will be linked to a presentation of a Haggadah linking excerpts from the Holocaust interviews with the story of Jewish liberation from Egyptian slavery as told in the Book of Exodus and in the Torah. The project culminates in students invited to a model Seder dinner at River Garden Home. For more information and to participate, contact r.trinklein@unf.edu or dianne.dawood@unf.edu.
