Is your project exempt?

Does your research pose more than minimal risk? (minimal risk occurs when the probability and magnitude of harm or discomfort anticipated in the research are not greater in and of themselves than those ordinarily encountered in daily life or during the performance of routine physical or psychological examinations or tests).

Yes

Your project will require full board review (complete Attachment A)

No

Does your research include prisoners?

Yes

Your project cannot be exempt. It will require either Expedited or Full Board review (complete Attachment A)

No

Does your research involve deception or include other vulnerable populations (e.g., children, pregnant women, handicapped or mentally disabled persons)?

Yes

Your project may not be exempt. Please contact a research integrity administrator (904-620-2455) before submitting your project to discuss the study details and determine if your project can be exempt.

No

Do all your research activities fall under one or more of the six exempt review categories?

Yes

Your project is most likely exempt. (complete Attachment B)

Please note that only IRB members or their designees can determine if a project is exempt. Please submit your exempt documents via IRBNet for review by the UNF IRB. If your project is determined not to be exempt, you will be asked to submit additional documentation for review.

No

Your project cannot be exempt. It will require either Expedited or Full Board review (complete Attachment A)
