

Courageous Conversations: Identity, Privilege & Diversity

Wed., March 27
2 to 4 p.m.

University of North Florida
Delaney Student
Union Ballrooms,
Building 58 West,
Room 3703

Registration
[http://tinyurl.com/
UNFMarch27](http://tinyurl.com/UNFMarch27)

Courageous Conversations is a collaborative series that examines current cultural issues in our nation that directly impact our community. This free workshop will focus on better understanding cultural identities through interactive activities and their application. As we work to create and participate in diverse environments, it is important to understand how our own and others' identities affect our lives and our interactions with each other. Reception to follow.

An equal access / equal opportunity university

Sponsors

- Office of the President
- Commission on Diversity and Inclusion (CODI)
- Coggin College of Business
- Division of Academic Affairs and Student Affairs
- Department of Diversity Initiatives
- LGBT Resource Center
- Office of Equal Opportunity
- Taylor Leadership Institute
- UNF Athletics
- University Police Department

Having privilege does not mean that an individual is immune to life's hardships, but it does mean having an unearned benefit or advantage one receives in society by nature of their identity. By understanding the obstacles nondominant groups face, we can enhance our well-being and personal development, improve our relations with others, and become better global citizens.